

W. A. Adams is Dead

After a long illness induced by heart weakness, W. A. Adams passed away at 4:00 p. m. Wednesday at the home of his brother, George, in Cooperstown.

He had been in a hospital in Fargo since last winter, but was taken to Cooperstown Saturday, the change evidently hastening his death.

The funeral was held at Cooperstown Friday at two o'clock. The local I. O. O. F. lodge, of which he was a member, had charge of the burial ceremony. The obituary will be published next week.
