

Mr. and Mrs. Chris Greenland received a telephone message from Cooperstown Wednesday, telling of the death of their brother-in-law, P. L. Lewis. Deceased had been in poor health for some time, having been in the hospital recently for an operation. While his condition was serious, his death was unexpected, as he had been up and around until a day or so before his death. The family formerly lived on a farm owned by them near New England. The members of the family surviving him are the wife and three children. Mr. Lewis was one of the fourteen candidates for sheriff last fall.
