

Vera Marrs

Married

It now becomes our very unusual duty as publisher of a local newspaper to chronicle the marriage of our eldest daughter, Vera Alene Marrs, the other party to the contract being Edward Alfred Crommett, whose parental home is Warwick.

The wedding occurred at eight o'clock Thursday evening, December 21 in Dickinson, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Alexander Coffin, pastor of the Dickinson Episcopal church.

It is not necessary for the writer to say anything concerning the bride, as she is known to most everybody in and around Sutton.

The groom is an industrious young man of good habits, is a graduate of the Warwick high school, and was a volunteer for service in the late war.

These young people will make their home at Zenith, near Dickinson, where Mr. Crommett has a position running a large steam engine at one of the lignite mines in that section.

This event brings to our mind most forcibly that time is passing on fleeted wings. Only yesterday, as it were, our daughter, as a baby, was essaying her first words and her first steps, to the great delight of her parents. Today she is mistress of her own home. So be it!
