

John Davidson writes to his parents that the marines to which he belongs is detailed to guard the city of San Francisco for a month from the sailors and marines on the warships that are now assembling at the harbor there. This is their first shore leave in two years and usually there are high times on such occasions. He also writes that he is to take an international telegraph course which includes learning the Morse code. This is required of all marines.