

Phil Lampert and son Lee were in town Friday, the former to get bills printed for the big hard time dance February 23. The family has been having quite a serious time this winter with sickness, Mr. Lampert and another son being on a diet for the cure of diabetes. Another of his sons received a cut on his head, in which infection set in, necessitating a trip to the hospital, and to add to these misfortunes, his little daughter's finger was crushed in the gears of a churn and also had to be taken to Fargo for treatment in order to save the finger. Theirs seems to be a case where misfortune never comes singly.
