

While on their trip to Minnesota Ed Rhodes' had the misfortune to overturn their car on some slippery roads. The top was badly smashed but no one was hurt. After righting the car they drove to a garage in Barnesville for some repairs. The mechanic who did the work, strange to relate, drove over the same road with his employer a few days later, and not far from the scene of the Rhodes accident their car went into the ditch and he was killed, his neck and back being broken.
