

Rev. Hewson Monoxide

Victim

Phone messages from Wimbledon Friday night conveyed the above intelligence. He left the post office to drive into the country and it is assumed, after starting his car he was overcome before he had time to open garage door. Discovery of his death was at six o'clock when Mrs. Hewson returned from the post office and found the motor of the car still running. This was four hours after Mr. Hewson had started out to make his drive.

The late appearance of the Reporter permits the chronicling of this tragedy.