

Alex McLead, who owned a farm west of town several years ago, died in Fargo recently. His leg was broken last fall and had to be amputated, the failure of the wound to heal eventually resulting in his death.