

An overheated stovepipe set fire to the ceiling in the living rooms occupied by L. V. Thorson and family, Tuesday evening. The blaze was discovered immediately, and was soon put out with the aid of fire extinguishers and a bucket brigade. No great damage was done. Olaf Christopherson received a badly bruised knee in the excitement when he miscalculated his position and fell on the edge of the walk in front of Ebentier's store while going after a fire extinguisher.
