

Banister Banter

Winsome Wit and Wisdom

A slight error appeared in this column last week. Bishop James M. Freeman was quoted as having said, "We are inundated with too much speaking." Our H. S. Philosopher added "Hm-m! That ought to clean up some of these poly-wogs." It should have read "That ought to clam up some of these poly-wags." There! that's much better, and thank you.

Bad luck is the man who stands with his hands in his pockets waiting to see how it will turn out.

Busy Man's Code

Be not simply good, be good for something.—Thoreau

The laws of nature have no policeman, but how you suffer when you break them.

The Small Pica

Overheard on the school ground: Hec. "Did you hear about the wooden wedding?"

Hector: "No, I'll bite"

Hec: "Two poles were married."

Somebody once said. "We have met the enemy and they are ours." [Was it Napoleon, or was it Ceaser or neither?]

The H. S. Baseball team has met the enemy all right but they "arn't ours." Hannaford took our game away from us, but at least we have the satisfaction of knowing how they did it.

Our H. S. Philosopher

If you can't find it in the dictionary, atlas or the encyclopedia, don't be discouraged; ask for it at the "chain" drug store.

Pathfinder

Emotion is the spark plug that gets action

Roger W. Babson

Here's something for the vocations class in their consideration of the future: Life is much like a deck of cards,

When you're in love it's hearts,
When you're engaged it's diamonds,

When you're married it's clubs,
When you're dead it's spades.

What can it profit a man to have millions if he has not a clean conscience?

Chief Justice Taft

The crocuses are springing up
The trees are budding out

The birds are singing "thrilly" songs

The "Captain's lost his famous gout

The—oh! Ho-hum-m

Our H. S. Philosopher