

M. Mogard made a trip to the big well at Glenfield Tuesday and brought back the report that drilling has again been resumed. They have gone through the red shale and are now in a limestone formation. The well is down over 1900 feet, just half the depth called for in the contract.