

A. J. Gunderson has removed all of the stock and fixtures from the drug store, some of which he is storing and the remainder taken to his store at Hope. Thus Sutton loses a business that the community can hardly afford to be without.