

Considerable interest was aroused Monday morning by a fleet of aeroplanes that were headed for Detroit Michigan. One plane became disabled when near Sutton and made a forced landing north of C. A. Linse's. It was necessary to send to Fargo for repairs, which could not reach here until Tuesday noon. At five o'clock the plane was able to hop off for Fargo and on to the Twin Cities where the crew expected to overtake the balance of the fleet. Because of assistance rendered the fliers, B. E. Hawkes was offered a free ride to Fargo to attend the state fair, but was unable to accept as harvest is approaching, and he could not take time from his work to make the trip.
