

Mrs. Ed Limmesand had an experience last Thursday with a mad bull that she will not soon forget. She had gone into the lot where the animal was and it attacked her, knocking her down. For about fifteen minutes it rolled her about and tossed her up in the air and finally threw her over a fence. Seeing his mistake the brute started for a gap in the fence to reach her and renew the attack, but Mrs. Limmesand managed to get up and run into a building nearby and keep out of the bull's reach until rescued. No serious injuries were inflicted, but she was very sore for several days.
