

H. D. Perkins had a close call Thursday morning when No. 3 went by. He was in the act of crossing the track from the south in his car when warned of his danger by the agent. Presence of mind enabled him to turn between the two tracks as the train passed.