

During the high wind last Thursday morning Ben Posey's wind mill was blown down. He was watering his horses in the barn and as he stepped outside the mill came down, landing on the ground not more than two feet from him. Ben says he received about as bad a scare as he ever cares to experience again.