

E. T. Pratt and wife went to McVile Sunday to bring home from the hospital their nephew, George McComber, who was seriously injured three weeks ago while swimming in the river near Jessie. He attempted to make a dive into the stream but his head struck a rock that was a few inches below the surface of the water, the blow partially paralyzing him. Although the place is a favorite spot for swimmers no one seems to have known the rock was there.