

A. B. Sackett has sold his barber shop fixtures and rented the building to Carl P. Fallman who will continue the business here. Mr. Sackett and his family will depart soon for Rochester, where he expects to take medical treatment. They are one of three families left who were residents of Sutton when the writer came here, the other two families being A. J. Melgard's and T. S. Davidson's. Ole Selden is the only other individual here now, who was here at that time. We are informed that Mr. Fallman expects to bring a bride to Sutton in the not far distant future.
