

Wm. Schmidt had some horses injured by a porcupine last week. This is the first time anyone around here ever knew of the existence of such an animal in this part of the country. The knees and nose of one of the horses were full of the quills which had to be removed with pinchers.