

A number of his many friends in this community had an opportunity to greet Rev. P. A. Thoreson last Friday when he was up from Fargo between trains to attend the funeral of Albert Sletten. Rev. Thoreson has gone through such severe spells of sickness during the past year or two as falls to the lot of very few men, and still survive. He is still under doctor's care, and must exercise the greatest caution in the care of his health, but he looks exceptionally well considering what he has been through, and all his many friends hope that he may now speedily regain still more of his former strength and vigor.—Hannaford Enterprise.
