

Harold Hoover and Miss Fern Davidson departed Tuesday for St. Paul to be joined in wedlock. His getaway was fraught with some grief, as a number to whom he owed accounts became suspicious that he was preparing to leave for good. They interviewed him at Revere where he was going to board the train and he returned to Sutton with them to make what settlements he could. He then went to Hanaford and took the N. P. train south in order to reach Fargo in time to join his bride-elect.
