

About twenty-five of our intrepid Odd Fellows braved the mud and slush last Thursday evening and journeyed by auto to Binford to attend the district meeting. While the going was pretty tough, those who started in time to reach their destination before dark managed to pull through without any mishaps. A few who could not get started until late did not fare so well. However, all reached Binford in time to participate in the entire meeting. The greater part of the night was devoted to degree work, two candidates having been captured as subjects. When midnight arrived the company was called down stairs where a splendid supper was in waiting. After this was disposed of, a short period was devoted to speech making and to some special readings and some songs by Oscar Greenland, L. P. Larson and a male quartet. Those from Sutton who were on the program for speeches were W. A. Adams and J. B. McWethy. The meeting was brought to a close about four a. m., and the homeward journey was begun. This time the trip was slightly easier, as the ground was frozen hard. The visit was thoroughly enjoyed, but methinks these district meetings ought to be staged a little later in the season.
