

Kenneth Byington, Arthur Ebentier and Fred Melgard had an experience Monday evening that nearly cost them serious bodily injury, if not worse. They were returning home from Cooperstown, Kenneth driving his father's car, and overtook a man with a team and wagon a short distance from town. The man started to turn out of the road but evidently changed his mind and pulled to the other side. The car was so close by this time that the new move could not be anticipated, consequently a collision resulted. The car was turned completely up side down and was practically demolished. The occupants escaped serious injury, although Fred was caught under the car when it turned over.
