

During the storm Wednesday morning, lightning struck the barn where Fred Dietrich lives. The bolt entered through the cupola and followed the hay carrier track to one end where it spread to the rafters, tearing out several, besides shingles and studdings. It then turned downward and ripped both upper and lower doors, doing in all about $300 damage which was covered by insurance.