

---

Kenneth Fitch and Clarence Ebentier arrived safely at their respective homes this week from France. The extent of their military service was just enough to give them the usual training in an American camp and a nice little trip across the pond, which will be a delightful memory, no doubt, in after years. They did not take much stock in France as a place to live, however.