

The little child of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Russell's narrowly escaped death from poisoning one day this week by drinking lysol. The baby was on a table near a shelf on which the bottle stood, and which it succeeded in reaching. Its cry of course attracted the attention of the parents, who summoned medical assistance immediately. There will be no serious results.