

Ingebret Simenson and Fred Kimbell returned home last Thursday from Rochester, where the former had been for the past month, undergoing examination and an operation. It took the clinic seventeen days to examine him before they decided to have the operation, and then he was operated on for the trouble as Dr. Wolverton had diagnosed it before Mr. Simenson left here. He is now very much better, although still weak, and unable to use his left hand.—Hannaford