

Saturday evening was the opening day for the new Clark hotel cafe, conducted by Miss Ida Clark, in connection with the Clark hotel. The tables were filled with many good things to eat and many took their supper at the restaurant. The cafe, which is run entirely on the European plan, is a handy arrangement since a customer can order just what he wishes and pay for no more, everything having a regular price, hence a person can, if his appetite is not very keen, get a fairly good meal for a nominal price, while, if he wishes, can order enough for the most voracious eater.
