

School Opens Next Monday

AFTER A LONG VACATION THE
SOUND OF THE SCHOOL BELL
WILL SOON BE HEARD

Monday, September 15 will start the 1913-14 school term and once again that old and familiar sound of the school bell will be heard, which has had a three months rest. It is a question whether this day brings happiness to the children who are called together on this day for the long and tedious grind of nine months, but the teachers welcome this day, for a school teacher's pay stops when vacation starts.

The outlook for a banner year is noticed, for without question as fine a corps of teachers that can be gotten together in a town the size of Courtenay, is what pupils will have as instructors this term, among them being a music teacher, a new department added this term.

The term opens in the morning and will probably last not later than noon. It is very important that all pupils be on hand the first day so that the wishes and needs of all may be met as nearly as possible. In the case of children entering the first grade, it is necessary that they begin with the beginning of the year as new classes cannot be started any time. The age limit is six, but those who will be six in a few months will probably be admitted.

The following is the list of teachers:

Superintendent, M. E. Chamberlain.

High school principal, Erma C. Jones.

High school assistant, Jessie M. Haynes.

Seventh and eighth grades, Helen S. Marsh.

Fifth and sixth grades, Pauline M. Best.

Third and fourth grades, Ida M. Milne.

First and second grades, Mary Robinson.

News Snapshots Of the 'Week

Over a school in Haven, Conn., authorities Federal J. Mayor William J. Gaynor of New York continued burning railroad bridges, thus d Britain after five days in the United S

Music and drawing, Agnes Dodd.

Miss Dodd comes to take a new department for the Courtenay schools. She will have work in music and drawing in the grades and in the high school. She is especially prepared to teach sciences, such as botany, zoology, physiology and agriculture. It is hoped to make the high school course a more practical one for the young people, more in line with the occupations they will follow later on.

Parents should see the importance of such subjects and advise their children to study them.

$10,000 For Hospital.

Rugby.—The Sheyenne Kreds Hospital association, organized by the Kreds conference of this district, has raised $10,000 for the support of its hospital.

Grown-Ups Vie With Juveniles.

Casselton.—When the corn show is held Oct. 9, 10 and 11, it will be a contest between grown-up and juvenile farmers. Corn has grown to be a popular crop in this locality. This season the acreage is larger than formerly. In addition to the fields grown by the farmers their sons have entered the contests started under the auspices of the schools and the Better Farming association. Some of the corn grown by the boys is exceptionally promising and adult farmers will not capture all the prizes.
