

Visiting Here

Julius Hoenhaus is spending a few days here from Becker, Minn., near where he has land. He is well pleased with his new home, and says that crop conditions are excellent there. His son, Max, has just completed a new house and barn on his land which adjoins his fathers. They are catering mostly to stock and have a nice start in that line. Mr. Trapp and family, formerly from here, but now farming only four miles from the Hoenhaus place, are also doing well in their new home. This section is one of Minnesota's corn belts and some of the choicest stock is seen roaming the fields.
