COMMUNITY LOYALTY

No city or town can grow and prosper unless its people are loyal to its interests and to its merchants.

Loyalty is not a long distance sentiment which is expressed by simply shouting for the flag.

Loyalty should begin in devotion to civic duty.

Loyalty not only means enthusiasm on the Fourth of July and other national holidays but substantial support of your city every day in the year.

Loyalty should display itself in working for the promotion of its growth and prosperity of the city working for the defense of its civic initiative, its right to exist and prosper.

One way to make your town grow is to patronize its merchants, promote its interests and to conserve its civic identity. You owe this to your neighbors, to yourself and to the community.
