

Julius Brekke died at his home in this village last evening after a long period of suffering from cancer. His recovery had been admitted hopeless several weeks ago, and his demise was just a matter of time. Mr. Brekke is one of the old residents of Hannaford, having been here for the past thirty years or more. Obituary will be published in next week's issue. Funeral services will be held Friday, March 23rd at 2 o'clock.
