

Homer Howe, who lives west of Rev. re, was taken to Fargo on Sunday, Jan. 29th, suffering with an acute attack of appendicitis. The doctors at St. John's hospital found the appendix perforated, but the operation for some time gave every promise of being successful, but later complications set in, and Mr. Howe died Friday evening, Feb. 3rd. The Howe family had just recently located in this community. Mrs. Howe and two children survive. The youngest child was born Jan. 9th, being less than a month old when the father died.
