

J. A. H. Winsloe Laid to Rest

Sentinel Courier: Dr. J. A. H. Winsloe is no more. After a long, hard fight with Death. Death at two o'clock Tuesday morning won and took from our midst Coopers-town's most popular citizen.

Until three years ago Dr. Winsloe was a splendid example of healthy manhood. Then there came an illness from which there was little promise of escape,—diabetes. But the doctor never gave up. Instead, he fought steadily on and continued in his work and companionship in the community with his usual cheerfulness. At times Mr. Winsloe felt that he was overcoming his disease, and only recently counted on a visit to a Wisconsin hospital for treatment he hoped would accomplish the desired end. But before that visit could be made, a trouble, usually fatal with those troubled as was Dr. Winsloe, came upon him in the nature of a carbuncle upon his neck. This trouble developed about two weeks ago. One week ago he was forced to his bed. A few days later he appeared to be improving, but since Sunday night he had been rapidly falling away. Monday he lost consciousness, never regained.

No man in this community had a greater circle of acquaintances and friends than had Dr. Winsloe. His work as a veterinarian, and especially as an auctioneer, took him so much among people of a wide territory hereabouts that there were few, if any, men, women and children who did not know Dr. Winsloe. And the doctor had a wonderful faculty of remembering names and places. "He knew them all by their first names," one of our number has said, and the assertion is very true. His memory coupled with his individual ways and constant good cheer are responsible for the exceptional patronage he has won as an auctioneer. In this work his services were in demand far into neighboring counties and sale seasons always found him a most busy man daily.

The trials of Dr. Winsloe the past year have been more than many would have dared face. For nearly a year Mrs. Winsloe has hovered between life and death. Her life has been in the balance for weeks and friends fear that the great shock suffered as a consequence of the passing of one who has meant so much to her life, one who has fought so gallantly that her life might be spared, will hasten the end of her. The two daughters, Edith, age 20, and Olive, age 16, with Mrs. Winsloe have the whole hearted sympathy of every individual in the community.

In addition to the wife and two daughters, Mr. Winsloe is survived by his parents, who reside at Pasadena, Maryland, and one brother at Johnstown, Pa.

The funeral was held Saturday, at the Masonic Temple under Masonic rites, in the presence of an immense crowd of people who had come from all parts of the county to pay the last tribute to this most popular citizen of our community. The body was taken the same day to Buffalo, N. Dak., for burial.

Anti-Freeze Solutions for the Auto

With the advent of cold weather it is necessary to give some thought to the question of anti-freezing solutions for the radiator and cooling system of automobiles.

"The solvent action of kerosene on rubber and its higher boiling point make it objectionable for use in the cooling system," says J. L. Larson of the division of agricultural engineering, University Farm. "Calcium chloride compounds are equally objectionable because they exert a greater corrosive action than water on the engine jacket and solder in the radiator.

"The corrosive action of alcohol solution is not greater than that of water alone, thus making it the most desirable anti-freezing solution. The approximate point at which alcohol solutions freeze are: 20 per cent solution, 15 degree above zero; 30 per cent solution, 8 degrees below zero; 50 per cent solution, 15 degrees below zero. Because of evaporation, this solution will become weak and ineffective unless more alcohol is added from time to time."

Commissioner Hagan is proving himself a poor sport in abandoning his state built home. There isn't any doubt but what he knew as much about the cost of his residence before election as he does since, being one of the directors of the home builders department, and it comes with mighty poor grace that he "gets out from under" just as soon as he loses his job. We look for a general house abandonment on the part of other state officials now that Hagan has established a precedent—and the state will have a number of homes on its hands for which no taxes can be collected.
