C. K. Stromme got a letter from Walter Halstein with the following news from the Buffalo Press in Minnesota. At a dance held in Marion, Minn., a large crowd had congregated. As the dance was in full swing the Devil appeared with real horns, hoofs and a split tail, and a broom in his hand. When the Devil was not dancing the broom was. The fire came out of his nose, mouth and ears. Many people got frightened and ran out; they forgot to take their cars. Many women fainted and one girl is still in the hospital from the scare. It was said the next Sunday that men who had not gone to church for years came that Sunday. A thousand dollars reward is offered to find out if it really was the Devil that had turned loose.
