

Claus Jackson's residence was struck by lightning last Saturday evening about six o'clock. Comparatively little damage was done; a few bricks in the chimney were loosened and the electric meter and some of the wiring was damaged. Altogether it may be considered a lucky escape that no more serious damage was done.