

A. O. LaValley, of Dazey, an old settler of Barnes county died suddenly Oct. 9, from heart failure. With his wife and H. G. Melton he had autoed out to the farm of Cal Ross to spend the afternoon hunting, but shortly after the hunting had started Mr. LaValley stated that he was not feeling well and went to the house to rest. Soon he felt better and prepared to return to town. He got his auto ready, drove it up to the house and went to assist Mrs. LaValley to the car. Just as he entered the door he dropped over and in a few minutes life was extinct. Mr. LaValley was a well liked businessman and interested in the welfare of
