

Sentinel - Courier: Frank Gladstone arrived here last Saturday from Dupree, S. D., and will remain a week or ten days when he will return with his family to their South Dakota home. Frank now wears a facial adornment in the shape of a beard which adds to his beauty and gives him a very distinguished appearance. He is serving his second term as states attorney of Ziebac county, Dupree being the county seat. He tells us that the past seasons have been very dry in his neighborhood but that this year there was an abundance of rainfall and a good crop is the result. Frank has faith in the future of the South Dakota country and although the dry weather has scared out numerous settlers and made land in his section very cheap, he contends that is the experience of every new country and is confident that things will adjust themselves in the course of a few years and more prosperous conditions prevail.
