

DOINGS IN OUR SCHOOL

The heads of the debaters are just beginning to return to normal size after a phenomenal swelling due the Fargo victory. Debate still seems to be in the atmosphere, however, for a slight echo was heard in economics class—the subject threshed out there was: Resolved that labor unions result in more harm than good. It is rumored that the second year class contains the coming debaters of the school—rumor based on a debate held in English II class but particulars are not available.

Hannaford has a treat in store for this week Thursday. At 8:30 in the Hall will be given probably the finest concert ever heard in this town. A double quartet composed of the best eight male voices in the State Normal School at Valley City (including faculty) will appear and give us one of their best. Every member has a solo voice and some will be heard of in Lyceum work before long—then we will have to go to some bigger place than Hannaford to hear them. Harry Davidson has a tenor voice which will no doubt take him into Grand Opera work if he keeps up his present rate of development. Prof. Meyer already has a state-wide reputation and as a bass soloist is hard to equal. And besides all the vocal attractions Ben Goodsell as boy violinist is alone worth the price of admission. When we come around to sell you a ticket don't say "No!" till you've thought of what a rare opportunity this is for every lover of music, fun and wholesome entertainment; and until you have thought, further, that the boys and girls of Hannaford School are trying through this to make other valuable additions to the school library—and you may have a son or daughter who will profit by these books some day, and anyway it's a good thing for the town. We expect your support to the extent of at least a couple of tickets.

Last Friday bombardments were heard which sounded like forebodings of a German attack—what was it? Oh, Prof. and the Physics class were testing out the speed of sound and have gathered some data which Edison himself would have coveted when of high school age.
