

The wedding of Tom Thumb given by the Primary room, assisted by the intermediate, attracted a very large audience at Jackson's Hall last Tuesday evening. The playlet represents a fashionable church wedding. The ushers, Otto Olson and Orlo Johnson, faultlessly and correctly attired, seated the guests as they came. Myrtle Westly, a cousin of the bride, sang, "O, Promise Me". Laury Van Scoik, the bride's father, sang, "Silver Threads Among the Gold". Bernice Buckencamp sang, "I Love You Truly". June Taylor and Gilmor Aarestad sang a duet. Arthur Sinclair also gave a solo. At the strains of the wedding march the bridal party entered. The bridesmaids came first, Virginia Taylor and Kathryn Schmidt, then the minister, Vernon Sletten. Richard Jones was best man and Buster Kencke, very sober and dignified, the bridegroom. Evelyn Aarestad made a sweet and demure little bride. For some reason or other she was in tears and this rather chagrined the best man. After the ceremony the guests all congratulated the bridal couple and Mildred Brusegaard, the bride's mother, shed tears. Refreshments were eaten after which the bride and groom departed, the guests waving their goodbyes.
