

It is reported that W. H. Richardson has been experimenting with a new kind of fuel with which to run his automobile, being induced to undertake this by the constantly increasing cost of gasoline. Unlike the majority of inventors, he does not make any secret of his discovery and gives the chemical formula of his discovery as H_2O . If anyone is interested in his experiments just ask him how his car runs on water.