

Last Wednesday forenoon C. L. Berg suffered a paralytic stroke from which he is still in a critical condition. He had been tending to the morning chores about the place and as he remained out unusually long, Mrs. Berg went out to look for him and found him lying helpless on the floor in the henhouse. Help was immediately summoned and he was taken into the house and given prompt medical care. At the present writing he is apparently resting easier, and has regained some of his strength, but is not entirely out of danger. Both his daughters, Miss Cora Berg, of McVile, and Mrs. Walter Probstfield, of Moorhead, were summoned and are present at their father's bedside.
