

Joseph Johnson returned home last Wednesday from Northfield, where he has just completed a college course at St. Olaf College. He had considered taking a position as teacher in the local school for the remainder of the year, but having looked the situation over, he decided the farm held out greater advantages