

Fire at Dooley

Dooley, Mont., came near being shy of three business places some days ago, says the Dooley Sun, when the Ford car of N. K. Markuson's, which was parked in the former Munson garage, caught fire from the sparks of a cigar which Mr. Markuson smoked while enroute. The front cushion and part of the back upholstery burnt before the fire was extinguished. Just when the sparks fell on the cushion is not known, but it was not until after the car had been placed in the garage that the fire broke out. It fortunately was discovered by some of the small boys of the town, who were out sliding and saw the reflection in the windows of the garage. The car was pushed outside and the fire extinguished. Had the fire not been discovered when it was it is an almost surety that the garage, Dooley Sun office and Leibach meat market would have been entirely burned to the ground.
