

Ole Stafney, section foreman for the Great Northern at this place, lost one of his fingers one day last week. He was adjusting something between the rails of the switch when the towerman operated the switch with the result that his finger was caught and crushed necessitating an amputation.