

THE COURIER.

FRIDAY, AUG 10, 1883.

The Dakota capital commission proposes to go on building, whatever be the decision of Judge Edgerton.

Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, the contour-tionest of the Brooklyn pulpit will visit the Northwest. He is billed for Fargo, August 15.

From reports at hand the Pioneer Press, of St. Paul, estimates the entire average yield of wheat in Dakota at 17 bushels per acre.

A new law in Kentucky making the legal distance between a church and a saloon a mile, it is feared will greatly diminish the attendance upon the former.

Some one has taken the trouble to figure up, and finds out that 500,000 base balls were used up last season, while it took 50,000 cords of wood to keep the country supplied with base ball clubs.

Between nature in the country just now and a milliner in the city, there is a strong resemblance. There are waterfalls in both, there are borders, ruffles, birds, fringes, tints, harmonies, and variety without end.

Rails and ties are already on the way for use on the Fargo Southern Air Line. The completion of this new outlet to the east by Dec. 1st is now assured, and it can be counted upon as a great advantage to North Dakota in general, as well as Fargo in particular.

The largest land holder in the United States is said to be E. C. Sprague, of Moorhead, Minn., a gentleman 70 years of age. He has 65,000 acres of Red River land, 60,000 acres of Florida ground and enough other soil in various parts of the union to swell the grand aggregate to 1,000,000 acres. He has 6000 acres under cultivation near Moorhead, in Clay county.

The week ending last Friday night was the most remarkable in the matter of giving titles to public land claimants in the history of the United States land office of the Fargo district. One hundred and seven claims were proved up during the week, of which number twenty-two of the claimants under the homestead law were persons who had lived on their claims continuously during the past five years.

Occasionally a man comes west imbued with the idea that he is a special messenger from the throne of omnipotent intellect, sent hither to enlighten the tie heathens of the frontier. Such tenderfeet learn a thing or two after being here a while if they are not too thick-headed to grasp an idea and hold it. In proportion to the population there are more full grown men in Dakota than in any other portion of the country, and those who are best acquainted do not entertain the idea that this is a land of idiots.—Columbia Sentinel.

READ IT.—A standing advertisement in a newspaper, set boldly out, attracts a good deal of attention and becomes transcribed in the memory of every reader. It may not be noticed at once, but after a while the lines grow familiar to the mind. The advantage is made apparent in this way: The subscriber, in the course of time, wants something in the line of goods kept by the man with whose advertisement he is familiar. He naturally visits the advertiser's store and buys what he wants; for, though he may never have been in the place before, he feels thoroughly acquainted with everything about it, and thus removes the embarrassment which no one likes to show on a shopping tour. A good advertisement in a newspaper is like a finger-board at a cross road, it removes all difficulty in finding the right place.—Ex.
