

THE COURIER.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 14, 1883.

The Chicago Inter-Ocean alludes to the Villard excursionists as all brains and dollars, whereupon the Herald exclaims in alarm: 'What! No stomachs? no gullets? and 50 different kinds of wines, spirits, malts, and cordials along?'

The general land office has just discovered a new scheme for defrauding purchasers of public lands. This consists in the forging of deeds and abstracts of title to lands that have never been purchased of the United States, and thus creating a fictitious claim of title, apt to deceive the unwary. As the fraud is against individuals and not against the United States, the government can take no action in the matter further than to warn intending purchasers to keep their eyes open and make careful examination of their titles.

Henry Smith, ex-speaker of the New York Assembly, voices a sentiment which is lodged in many an honest man's heart when he says: 'It seems to me that the time has come for the independent and thoughtful men of both parties to form a people's party, which shall make some effort to restrict the advances of corporation interests in every department of public life. There is a large element in both parties which is disgusted at the fact that they are merely to depend for their political action upon men like John F. Smyth or John Kelly—this too, in a state of the magnitude and intelligence of New York, where men like Seward and Marey and Silas Wright should be the recognized leaders. There is a feeling in favor of some new political movement, and it may be perfected within the present year.'

Nearly Exhausted.

The public domain is being taken in by settlers at a rate which will soon exhaust it. The number of homestead, timber-culture entries and cash sales for the year ending June 30, 1883, were 43,591 in Dakota, Kansas, Minnesota, Nebraska, Oregon, Washington, Wisconsin, Florida, Louisiana and Mississippi. The entries for the same states and territories in 1882 were 20,080. In Dakota alone, 3,227,267 acres were taken up last year. This evidently cannot be continued many years in succession. There will soon be no desirable land left in Dakota.—Philadelphia Press.
