

THE COURIER.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 21, 1883.

It is said that numerous herds of buffalo have been seen west of Standing Rock agency on the Little Missouri, and a party of two thousand Indians and employes are reported to have started out on the hunt.

Fargo Argus: The wheat in South Dakota and Minnesota was quite heavy, but it is said to be very soft and of an inferior quality to the hard wheat of the North. The millers down there pay extra prices for No. 1 Hard to work in with their softer varieties. Further east also North Dakota wheat is in demand to mix with their poorer grades.

Blessed Dakota.

No man can make money without money, but in Dakota he can come the earnest toiler of any country under the sun. If you disbelieve the assertion, come to Dakota and gaze upon our miles of shocked wheat, our groaning granaries, our well stocked farms, our happy farmers, their smiling wives and lovely daughters, our health-giving breezes, and wealth-giving lands. And when you come, come with the idea that you will see a country only ten years old and you will not be disappointed; do not come with the expectation of finding peach orchards and mansard roofed houses on every quarter section you may chance to see, or you will be sorely disappointed. Come with the idea that you will see a country where "Progression" is the watchword, where greater strides of improvement have been made than in any other section of the Union, where poor men are raised to affluence in three years, where two-thirds of the immigration tide are headed for; where young men can attain positions of honor and competence which they could never attain in the east, where honest workers are ever welcomed, where health and wealth await the seeker, where all is perfect, where all is pure, is righteous, and you will not be disappointed a single iota. To those who come in this manner, Dakota heartily welcomes; the grumbler, the growler, the liar and hypocrite she cordially invites to remain where they are, as misery loves company. It is the grandest territory ever kissed by the sun of heaven, or wept over by the dews of morning. Her lands are nightly clothed in mild array, covered by the blue skies of heaven, which are pinned down by a single star. Come, ye that thirst, and drink of the waters of life freely, and eat, drink and be merry, that your days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee. Come, and come in welcome.—Portland Inter-Ocean.
