

Mr. Tilden's complaint is called 'poor man's paralysis.' Many a poor man now in office would be paralyzed if the ex-governor should consent to run for the presidency again.

Secretary Teller is reported to have decided that Yankton is the place he will hold out, notwithstanding the executive order. This means a fight. Is it Teller and Raymond against Arthur and Ordway?

The Jamestown Capital truthfully remarks: Northern Dakota's ninety-nine elevators with their storage capacity of four and a quarter million of bushels, are proving inadequate for the accommodation of the immense crop.

Chicago Herald: While General Butler has been winning in Massachusetts the republicans have been losing ground. Pigmyes have taken the place of giants in the councils of the party. George Frisbie Hoar rattles about in the seat filled by Charles Sumner. Dawes does not compare favorably even with Boutwell. Butler is a candidate fit to meet able men. Weaklings are terrified by him.

The British farmer's lot is not a happy one. That's certain. Following the bad harvest comes a virulent outbreak of the foot and mouth disease in all the principal grazing and dairy districts. During the week ending Sept. 8 the number of farms upon which fresh were reported was 1,233, and the number of animals attacked was 22,132. The percentage of fatal cases had increased from the previous week.

So terrible has the name of Butler become to all republicans in Massachusetts that it is understood that Mr. Robinson, the opposition candidate for governor, objects to being left alone even for an hour. The "old man" is the first politician this country has produced who has been able to carry consternation into the ranks of the opposition before as well as after an election. If the Beacon street people sit up nights with Robinson they may be able to keep him in the field until November, but not otherwise.
