

—All that Cooperstown now lacks to complete its accessories for a first-class little city is tamed lightning, or to speak more conventional, the telegraph wire. This we are glad to state she will soon add to her acquisitions, a large force of men now being at work on the line. In a few weeks the wire will be stretched and Cooperstown will receive grain quotations and the important events of the world by electricity.